Glucose Tolerance Testing
Clinical Laboratory Patient Instructions

What are patient instructions?
Patient instructions are written toward helping explain the proper way in collecting laboratory specimens. If followed correctly, you are ensuring your test results will be accurate and reliable. They are instructions to be followed before, during and after the collection process. This is a vital step in the outcome of your laboratory results.

Instructions:
Your doctor has ordered a glucose tolerance test.
1) Fasting is required, please ask for fasting instructions if needed.
2) Be prepared to spend time at the clinic location. This test is a timesensitive procedure. Depending on the tolerance test being administered (1-hour, 2-hour, 3-hour, 5-hour or 6-hour) you will have to wait at the clinic until all specimens have been drawn.
3) A urine sample will need to be collected prior to starting the procedure. Be prepared to give a urine sample.
4) We may need to draw a fasting blood glucose depending on which tolerance test you are having done.
5) A bottle of glucola (50g, 75g, or 100g) will be given to drink. Once you are done drinking the glucola, a time interval will be established to draw the blood specimens.
6) When you are released at the completion of the entire procedure, be certain to eat a normal meal.
7) If at any time during the procedure you feel ill, be sure to let lab staff know and they will help assist you. If the glucola cannot stay down and you vomit, the tolerance test will have to be repeated on a different day.

Our Commitment
We are committed to help and assist you in every possible way. This is done by providing the most accurate and precise patient instructions. We hope your experience will be positive.
